

Objectives and Challenges

Who	Objective	Challenges
Police	Efficient use of Enforcement Time	Day long court proceedings
Schools	Provide Tertiary Prevention Programming for youth in age appropriate and evidence based practices (K-12): <ol style="list-style-type: none"> 1. Drug Education; 2. Intervention to at-risk youth; 3. Referral to treatment and after care for those returning from treatment. Direct treatment services are not provided in public schools. Development of school climate and culture that protects against any at-risk behaviors, and identifies and assists students that are at-risk for destructive decisions	Funding to programs and individuals that provide these services. Most critically, Student Assistance Programs (SAP), counselors, and materials for primary prevention education.
Providers	Treatment, Recovery, and Behavior Modification	Lack of Authority or repercussions to client if not followed
Judicial System	Punishment and corrective action and/or treatment needs to equally include both punishment as a way to deter, and corrective action that include drug treatment job development and other services.	There are no challenges for the punishment side of if however. The availability of treatment and correctional change services. There needs to be other similar services for offenders who do not qualify for the services offered by the jail. One suggestion is a day reporting or other intensive service. These services are just not there for many of these offenders.

Deterrence and Supports – Domestic violence and trauma

	What	Who	Effect
Adult	Access to Recovery	TPN for survivors of violence who are involved with the criminal justice system for reasons other than perpetrating abuse	Reduced recidivism
Youth	Teen Dating Violence Prevention Education	Turning Points Network Community providers	Violence Prevention which also reduces the need for Diversion, Treatment, Placement, etc; Fewer perpetrators and victims
	What	Who	Effect
Adult	Access to Recovery	TPN for survivors of violence who are involved with the criminal justice system for reasons other than perpetrating abuse	Reduced recidivism
Youth	Teen Dating Violence Prevention Education	Turning Points Network Community providers	Violence Prevention which also reduces the need for Diversion, Treatment, Placement, etc; Fewer perpetrators and victims